Parting Hymn.

Maggie C. Schouler

Now the bright sun gently gilding,
With a pure and mellow ray,
Western skies and distant mountains,
Tells us of departing day.

Heavenly Father, we implore thee,
'Ere the evening shades draw near,
And we part, perhaps forever,
Bless the friends assembled here.

If the paths we've trod together
Soon diverge, and wider grow
Grant our hearts for one another
With a faithful love may glow.

Though the buds may never blossom,
Wreathing now our May Day bright,
May our best hopes grow immortal,
Opening under faith's pure light.

May the friendships thou hast woven,
Stronger grow with future years;

Deepen, till we reach the city
Where are shed no parting tears.
